

Virtual – Hold the Phone

We all have smart phones these days, and they are never out of reach!

This icebreaker invites participants to share the last photograph on their phone with everybody else and explain how and why the picture was taken.

It might be a good idea to be a little flexible and allow delegates to choose a recent photograph.

Participants should hold the phone up to the webcam to show the picture, and then put the phone away whilst they give their explanation of the circumstances.

Allow participants 30 seconds to a minute and then move on to the next participant.

At the end of the activity all participants can vote on which they think is 'The best' photograph and explanation.